

MILLERCOMM89

AIDS Science and Society

one in a four-part series

AIDS is the medical and social catastrophe of this generation. Its toll in human suffering, lost productivity, and social dislocation is staggering. AIDS has become a fundamental parameter of experience. Touching virtually every area of American society, the AIDS crisis raises broad and pressing scientific and social questions that go far beyond the understanding and clinical treatment of HIV infection and disease.

19
SEP

Monday 8:00 pm 1988

Foellinger Auditorium
South End of the Quadrangle
University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

June Reinisch, director
Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender, and Reproduction

AIDS and Sex: What do we know? What do we need to know?

Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs
Vice Chancellor for Research
Associate Chancellor for Public Affairs
College of Communications
College of Law
College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Graduate College
School of Human Resources and Family Studies
School of Life Sciences
School of Nursing
Department of Anthropology
Department of English
Department of Health and Safety Studies
Department of History
Department of Speech Communication
Counseling Center

Division of Broadcasting
Division of Campus Recreation
Institute of Communications Research Institute of Government and Public Affairs
McKinley Health Center
Medical Humanities and Social Sciences Program,
College of Medicine at Urbana-Champaign
Office for Women's Resources and Services
Program in Science, Technology, and Society
Women's Studies Program
Central Black Student Union
Interfraternity Council
Panhellenic Council
Frances Nelson Health Center
George A. Miller Committee