Why I Write Fiction: My Life, My Work

Aharon Appelfeld

Novelist and Professor of Hebrew Literature
Ben Gurion University of the Negev

Captured and sent to a concentration camp at the age of eight, Aharon Appelfeld managed to escape only to spend the next three years of his childhood hiding in the Ukraine. In 1946 he immigrated to Israel, served in the Red Army and completed his education at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. Professor Appelfeld is the author of a number of acclaimed novels and books of short stories including To the Land of Cattails and Immortal Bartfus.
