

MILLERCOMM89

THE MISCOUNTING OF AMERICA

Barbara Bailer, PhD

Executive Director, American Statistical Association

When the Census Bureau completes the counting of the population in December 1990, it will provide counts to the President of the United States that are too low by at least three million people. Most of the missing are Black or Hispanic. More men than women and more young people than older people are missing. Yet these numbers are used to apportion the seats in the House of Representatives, to redistrict legislative areas within states, and to allocate Federal funds.

17
NOV

Thursday 8:00pm 1988

Third Floor, Levis Faculty Center

919 West Illinois Street, Urbana

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Robert Ferber Lecture in Statistics

Department of Finance
Department of Geography
Department of Mathematics
Department of Mechanical and Industrial Engineering
Department of Psychology
Department of Sociology
Department of Statistics
George A. Miller Committee

College of Medicine at Urbana-Champaign
School of Life Sciences
Department of Animal Sciences
Department of Business Administration
Department of Economics
Department of Educational Psychology
Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering